

Immigration Attorney Referrals

The Northwest Immigrant Rights Project (NWIRP) www.nwirp.org

NWIRP is a nonprofit organization that provides direct representation to low-income noncitizens and their families on immigration-related matters, including deportation defense. NOTE: Due to the tremendous need for their services and limited resources, NWIRP can only provide direct representation to a small percentage of noncitizens who need it. NWIRP has four offices in Washington State:

Private Attorneys

These attorneys are private immigration practitioners. While they are all based in the Seattle/Tacoma/Olympia area, they all represent noncitizens and their families throughout the state of Washington. All of these attorneys have considerable expertise in the confluence between immigration law and criminal law. All are members of the Washington State Chapter of the American Immigration Lawyers Association. These attorneys all speak Spanish and/or have Spanish-speaking staff, as well as the capacity for numerous other languages.
